Thirty-two members of the North American Vexillological Association and guests from ten states and one Canadian province gathered in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, for the fourth Annual membership meeting. The site of the meeting was the magnificent new Flag Plaza building, home of the Allegheny Trails Council, Boy Scouts of America, and the Flag Plaza Foundation. The host for the well-organized meeting was NAVA member George F. Cahill, who is the chief executive both of the Council and the Foundation. Mrs. Kownacki and other members of the staff assisted in making NAVA members feel at home.

Outside the building the flag of the Association flew. Inside, members were busy from Saturday morning, 11 October, until the end of the meeting the next afternoon. Old acquaintances were renewed, new flag friends made, and great interest expressed in the flag paintings of the Foundation and the exhibits. The latter included a set of wood inlay panels depicting the 28 flags of the United States and the three official versions of the U.S. seal, prepared by Wayne Roth, and the hand-embroidered flags sewn by Gery S. Benson.

The meeting on Saturday, following a tour of Pittsburgh, included Whitney Smith's filmstrip, "The United States Flag," and a number of illustrated lectures. Robert Gauron gave the results of his survey of "Flag Information Sources." Paul Kearney presented a large number of slides showing flags of business corporations. John Szala spoke on "The Flags of Pittsburgh" and presented each member with a printed copy of his talk. Wayne Roth discussed his flag and seal panels and his combined interest in marquetry and vexilology. Harold Diceman called upon his experience with the Canadian government to discuss new Canadian military flags. John P. Cassidy spoke of his efforts to gain recognition for the Easton flag. Mrs. Florence Hutchison gave the inside story of the new flag of Illinois. The meeting that day concluded with the flag ceremonies regularly conducted at the Flag Plaza, followed by an excellent dinner at a restaurant overlooking the city.

The following morning the business meeting of the Association got underway. The proposals of the by-laws committee were discussed and adopted with some amendments, following the reports of the officers. Several proposals were made and accepted for expanding the work of the Association. The publications committee will see to the preparation of a dictionary of flag terms and a compendium of vexilological resources. Members of the Association are urged to research the history of the Easton flag, and the program committee is to develop appropriate activities for the Association in connection with the forthcoming bicentennial celebrations of the United States.

Robert Gauron, Harold Diceman, and Newton Blakeslee were invited to serve as NAVA delegates to the Fourth International Congress of Vexillology, which will be held in Turin, Italy, in June of 1971. Those officers who had served during the 1969-70 term were re-elected by the Association, as follows: President, Dr. Whitney Smith; Vice President, Ashley Talbot; Corresponding Secretary, Robert Gauron; Recording Secretary, Kenneth Huff; Treasurer, Gary Grahk. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

From NAVA member Merritt L. Mosher, 2328
San Paula, Dallas, Texas, 75228:

With reference to your editorial in the September NAVA News.

You are perfectly correct, the eagle should be facing to its right, i.e., towards the viewer's left.

I refer you to the eagle as shown on the following: the Great Seal of the United States, the 25- and 50-cent silver coins, the flags of the President, Secretary of the Navy, Naval Reserve Merchant Marine, Coast Guard, and Army Chief of Staff.

However, to me the most interesting example is that in 1945 it was discovered that the President's seal and coat of arms in use since 1880, was wrong, as was also the proposed design for a new President's flag. The eagle was looking towards its left instead of towards its right as it should be "according to heraldic custom."
President Truman requested that the President's coat of arms, seal, and flag be redesigned in accordance with heraldic custom, and the Great Seal of the United States.

... It is also interesting to note that the design on the front cover of the 1967 Congressional Handbook, issued by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, not only had the eagle's head turned in the wrong direction
but also had the arrows and the olive branch shown in the wrong talons.

(Editor's note: Mr. Mosher enclosed Xerox copies of this cover and of correspondence
he had with the Superintendent of Documents
regarding the availability of the new American Flag posters from the Government Printing Office. A separate article on this apppears later in this issue).

NAVA REPRINT PROGRAM CONTINUES

Last year, NAVA members received a copy of H. M. Chapin's "The New England Flag." The Association continues its reprint series in 1970 with the publication of a little-known item, Frederic Marshall's
"International Vanities."

Originally appearing as a series of articles in "Blackwood's Magazine," this material on all aspects of international etiquette and symbolism (seals, titles, decorations, diplomatic privileges, etc.)
was printed in book form in Edinburgh in 1875.

NAVA has taken the fascinating chapter on emblems (actually mostly on flags)
for its reprint. Readers will be interested to see how conditions and attitudes have altered in the last century, and how many of the author's prophecies have come true. Certainly we can still agree with his observation that "there must be many flags which remain unknown to the compiler's, however careful they may be."

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE LAW OVERTURNED

A law requiring all students and teachers in Maryland public schools to begin each day with a Pledge of Allegiance to the United States flag was overturned by a Circuit Court judge in Anne Arundel County.

The law, which had been enacted by the 1970 Maryland General Assembly, had violated constitutional guarantees of free speech, it was ruled.

According to the decision, the state
had not proved that a student's or teacher's refusal to comply would interfere with appropriate discipline, and therefore was un­

NEW ATLAS EDITION
NOW AVAILABLE

The new, revised, 3rd edition of the National Geographic Atlas of the World has just become available, as of November 1st. This atlas will be of interest to vexillologists, as it contains color reproductions of the flags of 143 independent countries, 50 states of the U.S., and 12 provinces and territories of Canada, all with the latest changes. This is in addition to 140 pages of maps and an index containing 139,000 place names. The price is $18.50 for the soft-cover edition and $24.50 hard-bound. Order from National Geographic Society, P.O.Box 1640, Wash.D.C. 20013.
A CURIOUS CONFEDERATE FLAG

by Philip Reisman, Jr.

A Confederate flag blazoned with eleven and a half stars, origin and provenance unknown, has been found in a private collection of military memorabilia.

Even the Confederate States of America, which tolerated, if it did not sanction, some cloud-woven flags, would have considered this version of the Stars and Bars of 1861-1863 decidedly aberrant.

The conventional five-pointed stars arranged in a circular pattern of ten, with an eleventh star in the center. In the upper hoist is an eccentric half-star, carefully and deliberately cut with one complete ray missing and two others neatly bisected. If the number of complete stars signifies anything and was not, as was sometimes the case, just a matter of arbitrary taste, they could date the flag from any time after May 20, 1861, when the eleventh southern state, North Carolina, abandoned the Federal for the Confederate union.

But how to explain that orphan half-star hovering hopefully outside the constellation?

Speculation suggests that it may have symbolized a sympathetic, but uncommitted, state which was waiting, hesitantly, to join the Confederacy. Maryland or Kentucky might fit this hypothesis, except that they would probably have been represented by a whole star. Missouri, half-slave and half-free, and already threatened with partition, seems the most likely candidate for admission as half a state (star). Also, the variant pattern suggests that it might have been made in an area (Missouri?) where the official Stars and Bars flag was, for political reasons, not widely flown, so that any copy might have to be made from hearsay.

Measuring 22" x 36", the flag, from all exterior evidence, is quite old, and...
FINANCIAL VEXILLOLOGY
by Frederick Fatten

Financial vexillology is on the march in Southern California. A savings and loan association in Los Angeles, the United Savings and Loan Association of California, recently unfurled a new flag in a major advertising campaign. The red, orange, and white flag is the key feature of the campaign and is featured prominently, along with the slogan "It waves where you save" in newspaper advertisements and on billboards. The flag has alternate stripes (4) of dark red (top) and orange, with a circle of 13 white stars and a white inscription, "United Savings" below. The actual flag, to estimate by sight, apparently of standard 3' x 5' dimensions and regulation bunting with appliqued stars and lettering, is flying directly under the United States flag on tall flagstaffs at each branch office. 4" x 6" miniature flags, printed on paper (on one side only), decorate the executives' desks and tellers' windows inside. 1-3/4" x 3" adhesive stickers in full color and detail are available to customers as souvenirs.

According to a secretary at United Savings main office, the flag was created in July 1969 as part of an advertising campaign that began with the opening of three new offices to bring the firm's total to 13 branches. The number "13" apparently suggested the first U.S. flag to somebody at the advertising agency, because it drew up this "Betsy Ross" campaign and presented it to the management, who approved it. The campaign and flag will last at least until this spring, when United Savings' 14th branch is scheduled to open in Orange County. After that? Nobody knows. With the out-dating of the "13" concept, the advertising campaign and flag may go the way of all out-dated advertising campaigns-- into oblivion. Yet a number of United Savings' personnel seem to think that the flag is a very attractive and distinctive one, and definitely a popular idea; so there's a possibility that it may well outlast the campaign for which it was created and become the firm's permanent symbol.

Another local savings and loan association has its own flag, though this one is not nearly as well publicized as United Savings'. Marina Federal Savings, an association with branches in a number of Southern California's beach-resort cities, has a flag bearing its corporate emblem flying under the U.S. flag on the staff over its main office. However, none of the firm's present personnel (of those who were on duty when I inquired, at least) know anything more about it than that they do have it and fly it every day. The flag is of standard dimensions, with their eagle and wheel emblem on a monochromatic ground. The coloring of the emblem is: wheel, claws and feet, wing pectorals and beak--gold; body feathers--dark brown; head and tail feathers--white. On the flag, the spaces between the spokes of the wheel are also white, though on all other full-color versions of the emblem (on billboards, bus benches, etc.) they are colored in with the color of the ground. On these other versions of the emblem, the ground is usually a very deep ultramarine-blue, but on the flag it is a royal purple.

UNITED FUND DRIVE FLAG

Other organizations dependent on publicity are not above waving their own flags, also. The United Fund of Greater New York, which is similar to the charitable organizations in other cities, has a light-blue flag with a red cross and a large "U". These flags are to be seen along the major streets of that city every spring. The symbolism of the red cross is evident. The "U" stands for United and is in light blue. At the bottom, just in case anyone misses the point, the name of the association is printed in black.

NAVA 1971 DUES DUE

All members are reminded that their 1971 annual NAVA dues are now payable. Individual dues are $6.00 per year for active members, $3.00 for associate, and $25.00 for organizational. Please send your check, made out to the NORTH AMERICAN VEXILLOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION, to our Treasurer, Mr. Gary Grahl, 1452 Leland Ave., Bronx, N.Y. 10460, before December 31st if possible.
A new 6-cent U.S. Landing of the Pilgrims commemorative stamp may turn out to have the wrong flag flying at the Mayflower's mainmast, if your eyesight or magnifying glasses are good enough. The tiny flag is just barely visible to the naked eye, but when magnified shows what looks like a diagonal cross as well as a vertical one. No diagonal cross appeared on the British flag until 1801. The pilgrim ship, of course, sailed to these shores in 1620. No retraction is planned, since all 130 million stamps of the issue have been printed. (Wash.Star)

A resident of Cleveland, Ohio, was reported to have called the newspaper to ask the identity of a flag then flying over the marquee of a downtown hotel. It looked to him to be something subversive. Inspection proved the flag to be that of the state of Ohio. (The Plain Dealer, 9/27/70)

President Nixon has received the first of 8,000 U.S. flags being produced by a Florida firm operated by Cuban refugees under a recent contract with the government's Small Business Administration.

Vexillologists everywhere are interested in the flags of all the new countries and changes in older ones, but do they know anything about the countries themselves? A series of publications by the Department of State's Bureau of Intelligence and Research may fill this need. They are available from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. Those so far released are listed below:

The town of Suffield, Connecticut, is celebrating its 300th anniversary by striking a limited quantity of commemorative coins in sterling silver and bronze. The obverse of the coins displays a tobacco drying shed and a field of cigar leaf tobacco, in honor of long-dominant industry. The reverse shows the town's official seal, with a settler in Puritan costume and an Indian in robe and headdress. All designs are in deep relief and with antique finish. The coins measure 1-3/8 inches in diameter and can be purchased for $10 each in sterling silver and $2 each in solid bronze, plus 50¢ for mailing, from the Suffield 300th Anniversary Committee, Suffield, Connecticut, 06078. (Chicago Tribune, Oct. 25, 1970).

A framed display, glassed and ready to hang on the wall, of all ten historic American flag stamps issued in 1968, together with printed text on their backgrounds, is available from the Washington Stamp Exchange, 1776 Springfield Avenue, Maplewood, N.J., 07040.

The Bronx is moving to make official its previously unofficial tricolor flag, according to the New York Times of Nov. 6, 1970. If successful, it will become the first of the five boroughs to legalize its flag. The handsome banner has three horizontal stripes, orange, white and blue. In the center is a circle of laurel leaves within which is a shield showing the sun rising over the sea. Above the shield is an eagle with wings outspread, and below it a scroll with the motto "Ne Cede Malis," which means "do not yield to those who are evil."

The Editor wishes to thank all those NAVA members who have sent in clippings and items of flag news. Please keep it up!

NAVA ANNUAL MEETING, (Cont'd. from page 1)

The Association also voted to create the first Honorary Membership in NAVA, conferring this title on Mrs. Chester H. Lehman, the benefactress of the Flag Plaza. Announcement of this membership was made to Mrs. Lehman during the dinner on Saturday night, and she expressed her thanks to the Association for its recognition. Before adjournment, the Association voted to hold its 1971 Annual Meeting in Ottawa, Ontario, Canada.

FLAG POSTER

The flag poster mentioned in the Letters to the Editor column is 11 x 14 inches in size and shows the American Flag in full color, waving from a vertical staff. Beneath it are the words: "This is our Flag. Be Proud of it." It is printed on heavy stock and is available from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. The price is 25 cents for a single copy; $3.00 for 25 copies; and $5.00 for 50 copies. Make remittance payable to the Superintendent of Documents.

Also available from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Office Service Branch, Washington, D.C. 20226, are lithographs in full color on 8x10 paper of the Great Seal of the United States, 50¢ each; Dept. of the Treasury seal, 70¢ each; Presidential Seal, $1.25 each; and the Vice Presidential Seal, $1.25 each.
